

BARRY DEMPSTER

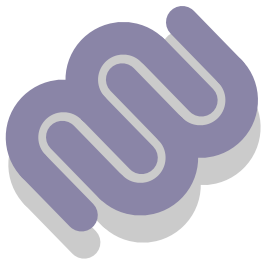

About Barry Dempster's book,
"Love Outlandish":

“ Barry Dempster presents love in many shapes from shifting angles, then collates the results, from the passionate and the faithful to the obsessive and off-beat.”

— Prairie Fire

Barry Dempster is the author of a novel, a children's book, two volumes of short stories and ten collections of poetry, the most recent of which, "The Burning Alphabet," was nominated for a Governor General's Award and won the Canadian Authors Association Chalmers Award for Poetry. From 1990 to 1997, he was Poetry and Reviews Editor for Poetry Canada. He has been on the faculty at The Banff Centre as mentor for the Writing Studio and Wired Writing programs. As the senior editor at Brick Books he has discovered and edited many of Canada's finest emerging poets. He currently lives in Holland Landing, Ontario with his wife, Karen, where he runs a film series and two book groups.
